

A demand model for grocery categories

Howard Smith
Oxford University

Øyvind Thomassen
University of Leuven

May 6, 2011

Abstract

Existing empirical analysis of market power on specific product categories typically abstracts from the broader shopping decisions of consumers. This paper specifies and estimates a model of demand for grocery categories in which consumers have shopping costs and may source their demand from a number of stores.